Car Ditched While Rounding Curve At High Speed

About 4 o'clock Tuesday morning a Ford car carrying a number of passengers, including two in the rumble seat, was wrecked at Goeleville. The car was coming at a high rate of speed and the driver attempted to turn the curve with the result that the car ran up an embankment and over turned.

The passengers were more or less cut and bruised and other wise injured.

Tom Davidson Jr., and Ike Cleveland Jr., of Orland Park happened along in their car and helped pull the victims from under the car. The car was badly damaged.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN CLUB

By Mrs. R. J. Hug

T. P. GARDEN CLUB NOTES
POPPIES
My lovely scarlet ladies
Are sought by every breeze,
Appraised by dancing butterflies,
And kissed by honeybees.

The nearby nunlike daisies,
Of pale and austere mold,
Have no such loud contenders,
Although their hearts are gold.

Rose Dulsky.
On June 11, 1930, Mrs. R. A. Napier of Blue Island invited Tinley Park Garden Club and Rose Chapter to visit her lovely Peony Garden and to meet the members of Blue Island Garden Club.

About fifteen of our members motored to Blue Island, and once more enjoyed this lovely garden, the peonies had just about finished their blooming, but the Rose garden was at its height of glory.

Mrs. R. H. Napier served fruit punch. After a friendly visit with Blue Island members, it was time for us to be on our way, with the picture of this lovely garden, to keep always.

Mrs. George Hartman sent in some lovely white peonies to the Flower Guild the week before last.

Mrs. Lulu Rogers and her civic committee were working hard in our park transplanting and arranging some petunias. Very shortly we will be able to enjoy the beauty of these flowers.

Friday June 13, 1930, was the regular meeting of the Tinley Park Garden Club and it was held at the beautiful home of Mrs. W. B. Combs. Meeting was called to order and much of the business had to be postponed for a later date.

The members then went down in the woods and enjoyed their box lunches with coffee served by the hostess. Mr. McMillan, a lecturer from Vaughn's joined the party and after we had finished, Mrs. Combs asked what we would like to have Mr. McMillan lecture on. It was suggested his subject to be, Garden Pests. Mr. McMillan was busy cutting various branches for his subject.

When we returned to the lawn, guests had arrived from Mokena Garden Club, Rose Chapter and Mrs. Smith, president of Forest Ridge Garden Club who also had a wonderful display of peonies on view.

Mrs. Combs introduced Mr. McMillan and after he lectured for about one hour, we were very much more educated about the different garden pests, and various remedies to rid the garden of them.

Our hostess requested us to gather around a table covered with a lovely lace cloth and upon which was a large punch bowl of delicious iced tea served by Mrs. Murray and hot coffee, by Mrs. Deyer, for those who preferred a hot drink.

Mrs. Florence Anderson and Mrs. Moss served ice cream, cake and strawberries.

This was a very lovely place to hold a meeting of our club, among the stately trees of nature, and where the birds could also sing notes of welcome.

Everyone was very much pleased with the lovely afternoon spent with Mrs. Combs.

Mrs. F. A. Tooley presented Mrs. Combs, a beautiful bouquet of flowers in behalf of the Mokena Garden Club.

The Lake Forest Garden Club have the following gardens opened to the public Saturday June 28, Mrs. Chas. H. Schweppe, Mrs. Hugh McBirney, Mrs. Donald R. McLennan, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase and Mrs. Alfred H. Granger.

Eight "Foreigners" Who Helped Win American Independence

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE Declaration of Independence is the charter of American freedom and the men who affixed their signatures to it in Philadelphia one hundred and fifty-four years ago are known as "America's 56 Immortals." Strictly speaking none of these 56 was an "American," for all of them, as citizens of the British Colonies in North America, were subjects of His Majesty, King George III of England. But what is even more interesting is the fact that eight of them were not even born on American soil and because of that fact it may be accurately stated that eight "foreigners" helped win American Independence by their part in the event we celebrate on July 4.

Of these eight "foreigners" three were born in Ireland, two in England, two in Scotland and one in Wales, so every part of the British Empire thus contributed to the founding of a new nation which should be deeply rooted in the British tradition. A few of them rendered other services to the new republic which guaranteed their being remembered by the nation which they helped to found, but the most of them are all but forgotten now. So it can be fairly said that their fame rests upon that one stroke of their pens. Curiously enough it is the penmanship of one which has perpetuated his name and made it familiar to thousands of Americans.

That man is Button Gwinnett, who was born in Ireland, two in England, two in Scotland and one in Wales, so every part of the British Empire thus contributed to the founding of a new nation which should be deeply rooted in the British tradition. A few of them rendered other services to the new republic which guaranteed their being remembered by the nation which they helped to found, but the most of them are all but forgotten now. So it can be fairly said that their fame rests upon that one stroke of their pens. Curiously enough it is the penmanship of one which has perpetuated his name and made it familiar to thousands of Americans.

Button Gwinnett

pointed a delegate to the Continental congress and as a representative from Georgia signed the Declaration of Independence.

Gwinnett was re-elected in October, 1776, appointed a member of the state government of Georgia in February, 1777, and is said to have furnished the basis for the state constitution that was afterwards adopted. In March of that year he was appointed president of the provincial council but was an unsuccessful candidate for governor in May. He was also an unsuccessful candidate for the position of brigadier general of the continental brigade to be levied in Georgia. Embittered by this and irritated by other incidents in which his successful opponent, Gen. Lachlan McIntosh, figured, Gwinnett challenged McIntosh to a duel. It was fought with pistols at a distance of 12 feet on May 15, 1777, and both were wounded, Gwinnett so seriously that he died 12 days later.

Years later when autograph collectors began seeking complete sets of the autographs of the Signers, it was discovered that signatures by this Georgia statesman were practically nonexistent. His untimely death had occurred before he had occasion to sign many public documents and he does not seem to have been a prolific letter writer. As far back as 1886 a Gwinnett autograph sold for $185. Forty years later one brought the unheard of price of $22,500. But this was only the beginning. A short time later another sold for $28,500 and in March, 1927, a letter signed by Button Gwinnett and five other Signers, was sold for $51,000.

The other English born Signer was Robert Morris, whose fame rests not so much upon his signature, either to that document or any other, as upon his services to the patriot cause which gave him the title of "Financier of the Revolution." He was born in Liverpool, England, January 20, 1734, and upon emigrating to this country at the age of thirteen, entered the counting house of Charles Willing, a wealthy Philadelphia merchant, where he obtained the training that was to be of such value to his country later. Becoming the partner of Willing's son, Thomas, Morris soon rose to a position of prominence in the Quaker city and because of his opposition to the stamp act and other measures involving colonial rights, he was elected a delegate to the Continental congress which issued the Declaration of Independence. He was re-elected in 1777 and again in 1778.

As a member of the ways and means committee he more than once saved the Revolution from financial collapse. Back of the brilliant campaign of Gen. Nathanael Greene in 1780 was the sturdy figure of Morris, who had supplied Greene with the munitions of war and in the same year he raised $1,400,000 which enabled Washington to make his dash against Cornwallis at Yorktown and bring an end to the war. Elected superintendent of finance in 1781 he found the financial situation desperate. The government of the new nation was $2,500,000 in debt and it seemed that it must fall even after it had won its independence. Morris saved it by organizing the Bank of North America, with a capital stock of $400,000, of which Morris himself subscribed $10,000.

In 1786 Morris was elected to the Pennsylvania legislature and in 1787 sat in the convention which framed the United States Constitution. In 1788 Pennsylvania honored him by electing him to the first United States senate, a post which he held until 1795. He had been offered the post of secretary of the treasury in Washington's cabinet but declined it and recommended Alexander Hamilton for the position. He went into the East Indian and China trade with Gouverneur Morris but his speculations ended disastrously. And it is to the eternal discredit of the nation which he helped found and more than once saved that for several years Robert Morris was allowed to languish in a debtor's cell. He died in Philadelphia, May 8, 1806.

Only a little less important historically than the two English-born were the two Scotch-born Signers—James Wilson and John Witherspoon. Both were distinguished educators as well as statesmen, Witherspoon as president of Princeton college and Wilson as a professor in the City college of Philadelphia which later merged into the University of Pennsylvania. Wilson was born at St. Andrews, Scotland, September 14, 1742, and emigrated to this country in 1763.

From the first he espoused the patriot cause and after several terms

as provincial representative was chosen to the Continental congress to which he was twice re-elected. He served on several important committees of congress and was appointed superintendent of Indian affairs for the middle district. At the outbreak of hostilities he became colonel of a Pennsylvania regiment of militia and served in the New Jersey campaign of 1776 but soon was forced to retire from the field to attend to his many civil duties. After independence was won he was elected to congress in 1782 and proposed the general plan of taxation which was adopted the following year. In the Constitutional convention he supported direct popular suffrage and a single executive and exercised much influence in determining the character of the Constitution which was adopted. After the new government went into operation under the Constitution, Wilson became a leader in the Federalist party and in October, 1789, Washington appointed him an associate justice of the Supreme court a position which he held until his death in Edenton, N. C., August 28, 1798.

John Witherspoon was born in Gifford, Haddingtonshire, Scotland, February 5, 1722. The son of a minister, Witherspoon was graduated from Edinburgh university in 1742. He studied theology and was ordained minister of the parish of Beith in 1745, and installed pastor at Paisley, in 1757. In 1758 he was moderator of the synod of Glasgow and Ayr. He declined the presidency of Princeton college in 1766, but accepted the second invitation and came to the United States, and was inaugurated president of Princeton in 1768.

Witherspoon was the leader of the Presbyterians in this country and was influential in attaching the Scotch and Scotch-Irish population of the colonies to the patriot cause. Because of his efforts in behalf of colonial rights which caused it to be said of him that he was "as high a son of liberty as any man in America," he was chosen a member of the convention that framed New Jersey's first constitution, a member of the provincial congress of New Jersey in 1776, and delegate in the Continental congress from 1776 to 1783. During the Revolution he was a member of the secret committee of the congress on the conduct of the war, and a member of the board of war in 1778. He was also a member of New Jersey council in 1780, of the assembly, 1783, 1789-1790, and of the New Jersey convention in 1787 to ratify the federal Constitution. He became blind in 1792, and died near Princeton, September 15, 1794.

Although Ireland contributed more of these eight "foreigners" who were Signers, none of them subsequently rose to such positions of importance in the new nation as did the Englishmen and Scotchmen previously mentioned. James Smith was born in Ireland about 1720, coming to this country in 1729 when his father emigrated to the Susquehanna country in Pennsylvania, where he became a farmer. Young Smith was educated at the College of Philadelphia, studied law and settled first in Shippensburg as a lawyer and surveyor and later in York.

As evidence of his versatility Smith next engaged in the iron manufacturing business and was a man of considerable property at the outbreak of the Revolution. In 1774 he raised the first company in Pennsylvania for the purpose of resisting Great Britain and was chosen as a member of the convention which met to consider a policy of nonimportation from England.

In 1776 he was elected to the provincial conference which met to form a new government for Pennsylvania. There he distinguished himself by seconding the motion of Dr. Benjamin Rush in favor of a declaration of independence. This was unanimously adopted and presented to the Continental congress a few days before the Declaration of Independence was offered. He was a member of the convention that assembled in Philadelphia July 15, 1776, to form a new constitution for the state, and on July 20 until 1778. Having lost his fortune in the war, Smith returned to the practice of his profession in which he continued until 1801. He died in York, Pa., July 11, 1806.

George Taylor's career closely parallels that of Smith in many respects. He was born in Ireland in 1716. He is said to have been the son of a clergyman and to have received a good education, preliminary to his study of medicine which he abandoned in order to emigrate to America in 1736. Leaving home penniless and without the knowledge of his parents, he took passage as a "redemptioneer," and on his arrival in Philadelphia bound himself to an iron manufacturer in Durham, Pa.

Taylor was elected to the provincial assembly that met in Philadelphia in 1764, was appointed to the committee on grievances and had a leading part in the debate on the revision of the charter. He was re-elected successively until 1770 when he returned to his business, which had turned out to be unprofitable in its new location, so he went back to Durham. Again he was sent to the provincial assembly and was also placed on the committee of safety as the first rumblings of the Revolution were heard. He was a member of the committee appointed to draw up instructions for delegates to the Continental congress. These instructions, forbidding them to vote for separation from England, were revoked in June, 1776. Because five of the Pennsylvania delegates hesitated to agree to the Declaration of Independence, others were chosen in their place on July 20. Taylor was one of these and, taking his seat the day of his election, he had his chance to become one of the Immortals when the engrossed copy of the Declaration was presented for the signature of the delegates on August 2. He retired from the congress in 1777 and died in Easton, Pa., February 23, 1781.

The third Irish-born Signer was Matthew Thornton, who was born somewhere on the Emerald Isle about 1714, and who emigrated with his father to America two or three years later. The Thorntons first settled in Maine, then removed to Massachusetts, where Matthew was educated. He studied medicine in Leicester and built up a profitable practice in Londonderry, N. H. During the French and Indian war he went as a surgeon with the New Hampshire troops in the expedition against Louisburg. Later he was appointed a justice of the peace and also served as a colonel of the militia.

Because of his active part in the overthrow of the royal government of New Hampshire at the outbreak of the Revolution, Doctor Thornton was chosen president of the provisional convention in 1775. He also served as chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas, and from 1776 to 1782 as judge of the Superior court of New Hampshire. He was chosen speaker of the assembly in January 5, 1776, and in September of that year was elected delegate to the Continental congress. As in the case of the Pennsylvania delegates he was allowed to sign his name to the engrossed copy of the Declaration, although he did not take his seat in the congress until November of 1776. He was re-elected for another year in December but retired from public office in 1779. Eventually he settled in Newburyport, Mass., where he died June 24, 1803.

The sole Welsh member of the band of Immortals, Francis Lewis, had a stirring career. Born in Llandaff, Wales, in March, 1713, he was left an orphan at an early age, but was given a good education in Westminster school by his distinguished uncle, the dean of St. Paul's. After a thorough training in the commercial life of London he decided to strike out for himself upon becoming of age. So he sold his patrimony, invested in merchandise and embarked for this country, where he established mercantile houses in New York and Philadelphia.

He was at Oswego in 1752, serving as a volunteer aide to Gen. Hugh Mercer, when that post was captured by the French and Indians. He was given up as a prisoner of war to the Indians. He was taken to Montreal and then sent to France, but finally was exchanged and returned to his home where the British government gave him 5,000 acres of land for his services. He was one of the first to join the Sons of Liberty and at the outbreak of the Revolution his position as a wealthy merchant brought him into political prominence. He was a member of the first Continental congress, was one of the New York committee of 100 and on several army and finance committees. He served in the congress which adopted the Declaration, and in 1777 was re-elected to that body. He was appointed commissioner of the board of admiralty in 1779 and became a vestryman in the historic Trinity church, a position which he held until his death in New York city December 19, 1803.

Man Might With Profit

Take Lesson From Dogs

If man took lessons from dogs, the world would be a better place, according to Frank Dole, sportsman and dog fancier, writing in Country Home.

"This," he says, "is not hero worship on my part, but I do believe that the sacrifices dogs make for men and the faith the dog places in his master are examples of the finest qualities, qualities which man might show in a greater degree to the benefit of everybody. But just as among millions of men there are comparatively few who could properly be described as heroes, so among the millions of dogs not a great many distinguish themselves above their fellows for heroism.

"It is true that a dog's devotion is seldom alienated by neglect, but to bring out the finest qualities in him he must be treated as a companion. Trust and companionship are the things that have produced the greatest of canine heroes."

Profits in Berries

Raspberries have proven themselves a valuable source of income to growers in the South, who have still found the demand too great for their production. Yields up to $500 an acre are reported by growers around Richmond, Asheville, Chattanooga and other places.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.

Start Paving Will County Roads

Actual construction of roads under Will county's bond issue has been going on for the past several weeks. The highway running thru the Barr subdivision to the Lincoln highway at the Gougar crossing has been about completed and the past week concrete was poured on Maple street where four miles of road are under construction. Much trouble has been encountered in securing the right of way. A bridge has been put in near Marley. Soon as the right of way is cleaned up the rest of Maple road will be built.

The sand, stone and cement for the Maple street job is being handled from New Lenox. The mixing machine and hoppers are located in back of the Emery Post place.

All new road work in Cook county is at a stand still for this year due to the lack of funds. Soon as the state gas tax funds are available road building activities will be resumed in Cook county.

When the census figures for the township were released last week by Mr. McGilvray, large increases were shown by every village in the township. Robbins showed a gain of 75 per cent; Posen 40 per cent and Tinley Park 67 per cent. Markham and Midlothian were not incorporated in 1920 so no figures are available for those villages in that year.

Compared with the estimates of the Chicago Regional Planning Association, both Posen and Robbins failed to come up to the expected increase. The Association had estimated the population of Posen for 1930 as 1600 and that of Robbins as 1300. Tinley Park, on the other hand, exceeded expectations, for its estimate was only 750. That body did not trouble to predict for Midlothian, which has experienced by far the largest growth. These forecasts were issued in 1928.

Republicans Plan Picnic, Consider Drainage Also

Monday evening the Bremen Township Republican club, meeting in Woerheide hall, discussed plans for their second annual picnic and barn dance to be held at Clarke's wood on June 29th. Games, dancing and speeches will be on the program.

For sometime the club has been discussing the drainage problems of the township. Now they have decided to ask the village boards of Midlothian, Tinley Park, Markham and Robbins as well as the Oak Forest Progressive Club, to send representatives to a meeting to be held July 1st for the purpose of threshing out their common problems and working together to secure some relief from the sanitary district and the county board.

Hold Flower Show At Oak Forest

One of the most attractive flower shows given by the Garden Club of Forest Ridge was held under the chairmanship of Mrs. S. G. Ohrrvall on Thursday, June 12, at the Oak Forest M. E. Church, which was decorated in the club colors of pink and white with a dark green background for the flowers.

A surprisingly large number of flowers were entered considering the adverse weather conditions. The fragrant colors of the flowers, the fragrance of roses and peonies, music furnished by the radio provided by Mr. St. Germain, combined to make the occasion a treat to all who attended. The judges, Mrs. A. C. Watson, Mrs. H. J. Whitcomb and Mrs. Angell, Mr. Kitzler of Swift & Co., and 12 club members, enjoyed a delicious spaghetti luncheon at Peter Corsi's.

Mrs. Horney's terrarium garden made entirely of locally secured plants excited a great deal of interest as did the Girl Scouts' dish gardens. In the Children's exhibit, it was of special interest to note the splendid workmanship on the bird houses and posters, and the artistic flower arrangements showed great promise.

The commercial peony exhibit put on by Phoenix Farms was especially commended by the judges who said it was one of the best they had seen at any of the flower shows.

Of the club members, Mrs. J. Berg won first place on points, Mrs. Ed. Sharp second and Mrs. W. St. Germain third. Of non-member exhibitors, Mrs. Wm. Funk of Tinley Park won first place, Mrs. Brinkman second and Mrs. J. T. Rudd, and Mrs. Sandeen tied for third place. In the Children's exhibit, Raymond Hall won first place, Mary Frances Smith second and Margaret Ray third. A beautiful spike of delphinium entered by Mrs. St. Germain received special mention; also a large can of nickles entered by Mrs. Ed. Sharp. The Girl Scouts' book of pressed and named wild flowers received special commendation.

Another Flower Show will be given at Forest Ridge school on August 23rd, under the chairmanship of Mrs. B. J. Reiser. The president of this active organization is Mrs. Charles E. Smith.

From the well-dressed window display, featuring a garden scene, to the green and white latticed booths, the new Garden Sweet Shop presented a very attractive appearance at the opening last Saturday. The patronage was very gratifying, according to R. K. Cumming, proprietor.

A beautiful bouquet was given by George P. Fetterly and a basket of flowers presented by the other tenants of the building. During the day a gross of balloons was given children; in the evening the men were given a cigar and the ladies a carnation.

Midlothian Wins First Place Again

In the last five years Len Small school won four first prizes and one second. This year the children did not expect a place, as they had no float. But at the annual field day at Palos Park on Wednesday of last week they marched—the boys in white sailor suits, the girls in white middie and skirts, with black ties and came home with another first prize.

Bremen Township Health Topics

The school picnic Wednesday was a great success. The parade was unusually good considering the general financial depression. The one float that I especially noticed from Bremen was from Forrest Ridge school; it was certainly unique.

Bremen came near having the health delegate from the Palos contest, as Margaret Crowley of St. Christopher's school tied with a girl from a public school in Rich township and after considerable discussion it was decided to give it to the girl from the public school. The delegates as a whole, scored higher this year than they did last.

BASEBALL NOTES

By H. H. Thormahlen

The American Legion Juniors won their first game Wednesday, June 11th from Homewood by a score of 11 to 8. The boys were trailing 8 to 3 but staged a thrilling fight to win. Bladen starred at bat, while Billows saved the game by his splendid pitching. Your attendance at our Wednesday evening games is earnestly solicited. The boys need your support, and we can assure you of an interesting twilight entertainment.

On June 14th we played Phoenix losing a heartbreaking game to the tune of 9 to 8. While the boys were trailing 7 to 2, they made another thrilling but heartbreaking finish, almost winning the game in the last inning. However, this indicates that the boys have a punch, which will win for them from now on.

The following boys have been chosen as regular members of the team:

Henry Bladen	Henry Jebens
Daniel Barnes	Howard Jebens
Ralph Billows	Julius Kot
Robert Billows	John Roche
Tom Blaney	Vernon Swillum
Louis DeRudder	Al Unger
Lloyd Hansen	Richard Weinberger

We regret that it was not possible to retain all the boys who answered the call, but the team is by ruling limited to 14, and to those who were not chosen we wish to extend our thanks for responding to the call, and to assure them that we personally are sorry we were limited in number in our choice. We would like to have kept as many as possible on the team. However, we now extend an invitation to them to come out for the team again next year.

The boys have shown a mighty fine spirit and Midlothian Post 691 is proud of them. Our community also has a right to be proud of the conduct of the boys. Come out and watch them play.

After the house at 145th and Waverly was raided recently, persons removed practically everything from the premises. However the fixtures belonged to Frank Nigro, who formerly lived there and expects to return to the village. He rented the house in good faith and asks that those who removed the fixtures return them, as an innocent person will be the loser otherwise.

The June Board meeting of the M. E. church will be held June 25th.

The local milk plant is being improved with a new milk cooling system. A 25 h. p. motor is being installed. About 30,000 pounds of milk are received here daily. Howard Beagley is the manager of the plant.

The drive put on by the Village Board for the collection of water bills has brought in nearly all the delinquent accounts.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kollman left Tuesday on a western trip. They will visit in Iowa and Nebraska.

Mokena Dairyman
Joins Holstein-Friesian Association

Louis F. Sass, a well known breeder of purebred Holsteins in Mokena, has just been admitted to membership in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, the world's largest livestock recording association in the world, according to word just received from Denver, Colorado. He is one of 791 from 38 different states, Porto Rico, and Hawaii that had been favorably recommended for membership at the 45th Annual Convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

More than 31,000 members are now active in the national association and approximately 1800 new members are admitted annually. Business is handled with more than 40,000 breeders of Holsteins, including non-members, each year. More than 125,000 purebred Holsteins were registered last year and more than 100,000 have been registered each of the past eight years. The total registrations now exceed the 2,000,000 mark the two millionth Holstein having been registered on February 4th and the second million was added in the past nine years.

Last January 1, a total of 30,796 active members were listed of which 1756 were in this state. The total new members to be admitted for this state at the Denver meeting is 66. The leading states in membership are: New York, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois with from 1000 to 5300 members each. Application for membership rank in approximately the same order but with Minnesota ranking fourth in the total of new members admitted this first five months. The advantage of membership in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America is the reduced (half rates) for registration and transfer and the power to vote for delegates to the annual convention where the Holstein policies are determined. The next Convention will be held at Syracuse, N. Y., although additional members will be admitted in October and December.

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration, and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

A state bank in Illinois may not subscribe to stock in like corporations, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has ruled. The request for an opinion originated in the action of a state bank in Chicago, which accepted stock in an eastern bank in payment of an amount due it. Subsequently the eastern bank failed and was placed in the hands of a receiver and a demand was made on the bank in Chicago to satisfy its stockholders' double liability.

"The banking act does not give a corporation organized under it the power to subscribe to capital stock of another corporation," reads Attorney General Carlstrom's opinion in part. "In the absence of express statutory authority it cannot become an incorporator by subscribing for shares of a new corporation, and it cannot do this indirectly through persons acting as its agents or tools." Mr. Carlstrom concluded that the bank, therefore, was not liable as a stockholder.

Cucumber production in the truck garden sections of Illinois, according to the marketing division of the state department of agriculture, has attained sufficient importance to justify the adopting of official grades, in line with the standards established by the federal bureau of agricultural economics. In order to co-ordinate the opinions of the cucumber growers, relative to official grade requirements, Director Stuart E. Pierson, of the state department of agriculture, has forwarded notices to the interested growers, calling for a conference in his office on Wednesday, July 2.

The Belgian horse show of the Illinois state fair, this year, has attained international recognition. From the original home of this prominent family of draft horses, Brussels, Belgium, the Belgian Horse Association is forwarding to Milton E. Jones, general manager of the state fair, a valuable silver trophy to be awarded to the owner of the finest specimen of the Belgian breed in the state fair exposition. The cup can be won but once by any representative of the breed. The winner of the cup this year, therefore, will be ineligible to compete for the cup at future sessions of the Illinois state fair.

The girls' school at the Illinois state fair will open this year on August 8 and continue 16 days, closing August 23, the last day of the fair. In order to enroll, applicants within the age limits—eighteen to forty—are urged to write Mrs. Anita Shamel, at her office in the state house at Springfield, asking for an enrollment blank. Applicants must secure the recommendation of the president of the farmers' institute and that of the president of the household science department in their own counties, before returning the blank to Mrs. Shamel. The application will then be presented to the director of agriculture for his approval.

Director Rodney H. Brandon, of the state department of public welfare, has ordered a survey of all state institutions to determine the extent to which production and consumption of dairy products, particularly butter, may be increased and the annual bill for butter substitutes diminished. This survey, Director Brandon stated, is an outgrowth of a conference conducted in his office recently, in which a delegation, headed by Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer, urged the department head to advocate the use of butter more extensively in the dairy rations of the wards of Illinois.

Winners in the twelve sectional contests who thus became contenders for the Governor Emmerson cup, grand prize trophy offered for the public speaking contest of the Future Farmers of America, to be conducted at Urbana, June 20, have been announced by J. E. Hill, supervisor of vocational agriculture as follows: Melvin Stengel, Lanark, "Live Stock Makes the Farm More Profitable"; Charles Farley, DeKalb, "Live Stock Makes the Farm More Profitable"; Ivan Peach, Walnut, "The Machine Age and Its Effect Upon Agriculture"; Samuel Atkins, Paxton, "What the Future Farmers of America Mean to the Future of America"; Kenneth Dixon, Colchester, "Community Co-Operation"; Edward Leman, Metamora, "Why Study Agriculture"; Robert Buehrig, Minier, "Why Co-Operate"; Bruce Swinford, Hindshoro, "The Successful Future Farmer"; Frank W. Andrews, Palmyra, "The Farm Shop—Its Importance and Care"; Victor Monke, Litchfield, "Agriculture and Education"; Donald Winters, Hutsonville, "Diversification"; George Winegarner, Marion, "Co-Operative Marketing."

Among the speakers at the annual convention of the Illinois County and Probate Judges association to be held in Jacksonville, June 26, 27 and 28, will be Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and Judge Warren H. Orr of Carthage, newly elected justice of the Supreme court.

One out of every eleven homes in Illinois has a radio set of some description, according to the handbook on Illinois now being assembled by the research department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

Governor Louis L. Emmerson has approved plans for extensive landscaping of the fair grounds. An arboretum that when completed will contain at least one specimen of every tree that is indigenous to Illinois, as well as some imported specimens that will thrive in this climate, is one of the principal features of this beautification project. Another feature is a game preserve to be established on a section of the fair ground property that has been neglected in the past. For immediate effect, especially during fair week, August 16-23, thousands of showy annual flowers are being propagated under the direction of John Tiplady, who is landscape designer for the department of public welfare.

Despite a slight seasonal decrease in the production of coal in the country at large, the output of Illinois mines remained steady during the third week in May, according to reports of the United States bureau of mines. In the week ended May 17 the total production of soft coal in the United States amounted to 8,169,000 net tons. Of this output, 756,000 net tons were contributed by Illinois mines.

Promising a vigorous campaign to improve the situation, Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, has announced that only 26 counties in the state measured up to minimum standards of reporting contagious diseases, while the state as a whole fell considerably below the standard requirements. This fact was disclosed as the result of a house to house canvass, recently completed by the state health department, which covered 1 per cent of the population in every county. At least 75 per cent of all cases of each disease must be reported in order to meet requirements that are considered satisfactory. "Reporting cases," declared Doctor Hall, "is to disease control very much what turning in the alarm is to fire control. Let two or three cases of smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough or other contagion go unreported for a few days or altogether and soon the disease has burst into an epidemic."

P. M. Harman, chief investigator of the automobile department of Secretary of State William J. Stratton's office, has ordered his investigators all over the state to bring in owners of automobiles who have failed to buy 1930 license plates. Particular attention will be paid to those who purchase new cars this month and attempt to evade the law until July 1 when the half year license plate rate becomes effective.

Fees collected by the secretary of state in the first five months of 1930 show an increase of $1,730,297.15 over the same period last year, the accounting department of Secretary of State William J. Stratton's office has announced. Total collections up to May 31 this year were $17,784,291.11 as compared with $16,053,994.69 for the same period in 1929.

The executive committee of the Illinois congress of parents and teachers met in their new headquarters, rooms 1412-1414 Tower building, at 10 a. m., Monday and Tuesday, June 16 and 17. Order of business included appointment of chairman of standing committees, outlining of duties of officers and the adoption of plans of work.

Commenting on the fact that only two states have had more diphtheria to date this year than Illinois, Dr. Andy Hall called attention to the fact established by very able medical observers that large epidemics of diphtheria are apt to follow extended periods of dry weather. "This possibility is far from reassuring now in Illinois," said Doctor Hall. "The volume of rainfall to date this year is five inches below normal. With a diphtheria rate already above that for most other states and higher than that for Illinois in 1929, the factors favoring wide prevalence next fall are uncomfortably multiple.

"Toxin-antitoxin given to children now will make them immune against the disease even if exposed to it next fall. Since it takes about three months for immunity to establish itself, now is the most practical time to take the preventive treatment."

The degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Gov. Louis L. Emmerson by Milliken university, Decatur, at the annual commencement exercises of that school. In the absence of Governor Emmerson, who was in Toronto, the degree was accepted on behalf of the governor by Honorable C. J. Doyle of Springfield. Mrs. Emmerson attended the exercises.

Records of the automobile department of Secretary of State William J. Stratton's office show that between seven and eight out of every one hundred passenger automobiles licensed to operate are owned by woman.

The administrative committee of the Illinois Council of Churches, an organization formed last March in Springfield, will meet June 24 in the state capital to further plans for the council. A charter was recently granted the council and it is expected that the selection of an executive secretary, who will have offices in Springfield, will be made in the near future. The purpose of the organization is to create a better understanding of Christian forces and to secure a more adequate grasp on the religious needs of the state.

Lesson for June 22

THE RISEN LORD AND THE GREAT COMMISSION

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore and teach all nations.
LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:1-20.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Carrying on Jesus' Work.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Marching Orders.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Great Commission.

I. The Empty Sepulchre (vv. 1-7).

1. The earthquake (vv. 1-4). This occurred when the glorious angel descended from heaven to roll the stone away from the tomb. This work of the angel was not to allow Jesus to escape, but to show that the tomb was empty. Christ needed not even the help of the angel, for He came forth from the grave by His own power as the seal of His atoning work on the cross (Rom. 1:4). The open tomb and the angel sitting upon the stone with calm dignity, is a graphic picture of Christ's triumph over the devil, and the terror of the keepers is a sample of what all of Christ's enemies shall one day experience when He comes in glory to reign as King.

2. The angel's message to the women (vv. 5-7).

(1) Fear not (v. 5). While the enemies had occasion to fear, these women who loved the Lord received good news from the empty tomb. The empty tomb puts an end forever to all doubts and fears. Let every teacher endeavor to show the greatness of the fact that the tomb was empty, for it shows that we have a living Christ. The resurrection of Christ should be the major theme of those who give out the Christian message. (2) "Come, see" (v. 6). The angel told the women that the Lord had risen and invited them to see the place where He lay. The Lord made special effort to convince the disciples of the reality of His resurrection. He remained with them for forty days, giving them many "infallible proofs." (3) "Go quickly" (v. 7). Having seen for themselves, their responsibility was to go and tell the message. Experience is necessary before testimony. They were to go quickly to the disciples with the message, assured that the Lord would go before and meet them.

II. The Risen Lord Meets the Women (vv. 8-10).

The women quickly obeyed the command of the angel, and were running to bring word to the disciples. Jesus met them on the way. Those who have an experimental knowledge of Christ should go speedily to tell others of it. When they saw Jesus—that He was really the Lord—they worshiped Him.

III. Paying Money to Circulate a Lie (vv. 11-15).

That Jesus arose from the dead could not be denied even by the Sanhedrin. They saw only one way out of the difficulty; that was to bribe the keepers to tell a lie. They had paid money for His betrayal—now they paid more money to circulate a lie about His resurrection. This shows the wonderful power that money has over the lives and consciences of men. It not only induces people to lie, but it even muzzles the mouths of some teachers and preachers.

IV. The King's Great Commission (vv. 16-20).

1. The royal authority (v. 18). By virtue of His divine authority, He issued this command to the disciples. In order to prepare them for the reception of this command, He declared unto them that all power in heaven and earth had been given unto Him.

2. The commission itself (vv. 19, 20).

It consists of three parts. (1) Go teach all nations. This is the first and primary business of the disciple. This command has been issued to all disciples by the risen and mighty Lord. (2) Baptize them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Those who have become disciples of the Lord should receive the rite which signifies that relationship to Him. (3) Teach them to observe all of Christ's commandments (v. 20). Those who have become Christ's disciples should be taught conformity to His will.

3. The available power (v. 2). Those who obey Christ in carrying out this commission shall enjoy His abiding presence.

Prayer the Golden Key

Prayer is a golden key which should open the morning and lock up the evening.—Bishop Hopkins.

Making Short Cuts

There are plenty of cuts across corners that one can make in life, in education, in business, in politics, in religion. But there is really no short cut to any promised land.—Edgar Whitaker Work, D. D.

Should Have Jesus With Us

What lessons the sea teaches us. It is calm like life at times, then stormy, also like life, causing shipwrecks. If we sail life's sea, we should have Jesus with us in the ship.—Morris Martin.

A box of sweets compacted lie.—Herbert.

I can teach sugar to slip down your throat a million ways. The last taste of sweets is sweetest last. —Richard Thord.

OUT OF THE CANDY BOX

As we enjoy comforts and luxuries unheeded in Russia, one writer assures us as long as our middle classes can eat plenty of candy and ice cream we need never fear for our patriotism.

The ensemble idea in dress is being carried into the appetite for candy. For example a book and a box of candy is as we all know the high sign of enjoyment. The story or book being read should have the candy to go with it, says our Confectioner's association. Match the mood of the book. There's salt water taffy for the sea story, french bonbons for the boudoir tale, crisp peanut brittle for the novel of adventure, fudge for sentiment and romance, gum drops for Polar explorations, filled candies for mystery stories and peppermint drops or patties for the book of philosophy which calls for thought. Candy and books belong together like the hand and glove. The only difficulty is to keep supplied with the kind which matches the book.

A quick cake frosting which one may prepare in an emergency. Use on cake or small cookies:

Chocolate Cream Frosting.—Bake a cupful of chocolate creams, melt in a double boiler with one teaspoonful of orange juice. Beat until of the right consistency to spread.

Peanut Candy.—Here is a candy which will be enjoyed even better than the peanut brittle. Take one pound of freshly roasted peanuts, shell and remove the brown skins. Roll on the bread board with a rolling pin until like coarse crumbs.

Into an iron frying pan place twelve tablespoonfuls of butter and two pounds of brown sugar. Stir over the heat until the sugar and butter form a sirup. Count the time from the instant the mixture begins to boil, then boil and stir constantly for seven minutes. Add the peanuts and pour and pat into a well buttered dripping pan. Mark off into squares and when cool begin to eat it. It doesn't last long.

Milk Shake.—Put one teaspoonful of fine sugar in a tumbler, add thoroughly chilled milk to fill the glass two-thirds full, add a teaspoonful of marshmallow sirup, and top with whipped cream. Cover and shake.

DISHES THAT ARE DIFFERENT

The following chicken salad with a hot biscuit, dessert and coffee will make a complete luncheon menu:

Chicken Fruit Salad.—Cut cooked chicken into strips, using two cupfuls of chicken, one cupful of celery cut the same way and one cupful of orange sections. Pile on lettuce, top with mayonnaise which has been enriched with cream and top with the orange sections as they will crush when mixed with the salad.

Try making lemon pies in individual tins; they are so much more attractive and no matter how soft the filling they will serve well. Preparing these little pies is not so difficult or more work. Be sure that the pastry does not run over the edge of the tin as the pastry is put on the bottom of the inverted tins to bake. Prick them well so that no bubbles will form.

Spanish Sauce.—Prepare a white sauce using two tablespoonfuls of butter and the same of flour, one teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Melt the butter, add the flour and stir until well blended. Remove from the heat and add the milk gradually, using one and one-half cupfuls of top milk. Cook, stirring until the sauce boils, add seasonings and one small can of pimientos finely chopped. This recipe makes one and one-half cupfuls of sauce and lends a piquant flavor which is quite foreign.

Maple Bavarian Cream.—Take two-thirds of a cupful of maple sirup, the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of gelatin, four tablespoonfuls of cold water, one-half pint of whipping cream and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Soak the gelatin in the cold water. Heat the maple sirup to boiling, add the softened gelatin, add to the beaten egg a little at a time, let stand until beginning to thicken, then beat for a few minutes, fold in the whipped cream and flavoring. Pour into a mold and cool.

Sardine Salad.—Take one-half cupful of sardines skinned, boned and shredded, mix with the juice of half a lemon, add one-half cupful of stuffed celery hearts, one-half cupful of stuffed olives cut fine, mix all and add mayonnaise and serve on lettuce. Garnish with nuts.

Sardine Mayonnaise.—Skin and bone three sardines, mash and mix well. Sift the cooked yolks of three eggs and add to the sardines; work until smooth, then add to one cupful of mayonnaise dressing.

BEFORE secret suffering breaks out in open revolt—before the little home is irretrievably shattered by a husband's strong pipe—can't something be done? Certainly. A new pipe will help, or even an old pipe cleaned and filled with Sir Walter Raleigh's favorite smoking mixture. It really is milder, with no sacrifice of richness and fragrance. It really is as popular with the smoked-at as it is with the smoker.

Diner of 1970 Recalls Good Old Days of 1930

Johnson swallowed a concentrated roast beef and potato tablet. "Nor like the old days," he said, "Eating is an incident nowadays. It used to be a ritual. How well I recall those leisurely ten-minute lunches in the building pharmacy. I can still taste those old-fashioned tuna sandwiches. I can still hear the musical gurgle of the malted milk mixer and the song of the carbonated water as it fizzed into the glass. That was 40 years ago in quaint 1930, when cookery was one of man's arts and eating one of his pleasures.

"We all used to meet on the high stools of the drug store and no matter how busy we were we always took 15 minutes for a deliberate, delicious meal. There were dishes served that you never even heard of, ambrosial epicurean delicacies lovingly prepared by a cult of callow youths in white coats. Ah, those minced ham sandwiches, those root beers with cracked ice swimming on top, those pound and raisin cakes, those cream cheese and chopped almond sandwiches! But I must stop. I fear I'm becoming a sentimental old gourmand again. Give me a pie a la mode pill and let's get down to work!"—Kansas City Star.

No Census

The following story was told by a census taker recently assigned to count noses in Indianapolis:

An elderly and somewhat befuddled woman appeared at the door in response to his knock one morning. "Good day, madam. I've called to get your census," he politely explained.

After a moment's hesitation she said: "Why, mister, I ain't got no census."—Indianapolis News.

Joshua swung around with amazing quickness in a man of his size. There was a look almost of sly consideration in the china-blue eyes that stabbed questioningly into Fellowes'.

"Ah, yes," he answered. "Heard of you, Captain Fellowes. Heard of the incident you mention, of course. That d-d cur, Chater—ah, ahem, humph! But why d' you come to me? You must know my brother and I—"

"I have information in that connection which I think will interest you," Fellowes interrupted quietly.

Inglepin drew a step nearer. There was no suggestion of slyness in his face, now. His expression was eager, curiously avaricious. His blue eyes were cold as Fellowes' own.

"This d-d license business, eh?"

"That—and more."

Inglepin hesitated, then asked abruptly:

"Treason, eh?"

"I believe so, sir."

"Knew it, by G—d!" Joshua slapped his hip delightedly. "Knew the d-d fool couldn't play with fire, and not burn his fingers. Knew it soon as I heard he was keepin' on the True Bounty's crew. But you, sir, how'd you—"

"I can't tell you here, Mr. Inglepin. Will it suffice if I say I escaped several days ago from the Badger sloop-of-war? And have just surprised your brother and his daughter, with Chater, entertaining Captain Collishawe at Chater's farm on Long Island?"

Joshua Inglepin slipped his arm through Fellowes', and the light in his eyes danced and flickered as if a wind was blowing it.

"Come with me," he said. "My office will do. Glad you dropped in, Captain Fellowes. Believe you and I can do some business. Eh? Treason! But I expected it, I expected it. Ben always would over-reach himself. Ha, ha! The d-d fool!"

"... a petition Lord Wellington said, the ministers were cordial, but they'd require a definite petition. I'm persuaded 'tis that document your brother has been concocting these past months."

"He's been hand-in-glove with every runagate Federalist in the North," admitted Joshua.

"Exactly, sir. And my guess is that before going further with it they awaited some answer from the Canadian authorities. If I'm right 'twas that answer Collishawe delivered at Babylon."

"And why wouldn't they have turned over the petition, or whatever the thingummy was, to him?"

"'Tis likelier they'd choose to convey it themselves since most delicate negotiations would flow from it. I feel this the more strongly, sir, after hearing the True Bounty is held ready for sailing."

"Sounds reasonable," growled Joshua. "So our job is to find this abominable scrawl?"

"We should have your brother's house and office searched tonight," Fellowes returned promptly.

"You'll find no papers in Ben's house or office, Captain Fellowes, you nor anyone. I knew the scoundrel, and knowing him I refuse to underestimate him. Aboard ship, maybe. Yes, but not until after she's sailed."

"Wait for his sailing, then, and pursue," exclaimed Fellowes.

"Take him red-handed, eh? That would be best. You may depend upon it, he and Chater are taking extraordinary precautions in whatever they are up to. As for the girl—humph! If my eyes tell me anything, she has more sense than her father."

"She is unusually intelligent," Fellowes agreed heavily. "I'd prefer not to speak of her."

"Humph! Ha! Quite so! But if I'm to play with you, captain, I want all the cards on the table—face up."

"I have no intention that it should be otherwise, sir."

Inglepin was undeterred by the frosty note in his caller's tone.

"No necessity for pique," he asserted briskly. "I can't afford to run the risk of having good plans spoiled by a man's weakness for a woman." The china-blue eyes danced again with the flickering light that seemed at once to warm and chill them. "Seen it happen too often. Shouldn't put it past Ben to use her for that purpose."

"She can have no influence upon me, Mr. Inglepin."

"Hate her, eh? Same as her father? Same as Chater?"

"Hate her?" And suddenly a flame blazed up in Fellowes'. "Yes, I hate her! I hate her for my stripes. I hate her on Collishawe's account. I hate her for the treason she practices. I—I hate her!"

Joshua Inglepin sat back with a little grunt of satisfaction.

"You'll do," he decided. "I'm not so sure 'tis—ah—what you call it, Captain Fellowes; but the sentiment will safeguard my interests."

"And what may your interests be?" Fellowes asked harshly.

"Need you ask?" countered the merchant. "I am on all fours with you in this matter, sir. I'd see Ben hung high as Liamen, and Chater beside him. The girl—Well, we needn't discuss her. 'Tis not pleasant for you, and I'd not fight a woman, might I help it."

"What of Collishawe?"

"That's your affair."

"Nathless, he must figure in any bargain we strike," declared Fellowes. "Granted," conceded Joshua, "with-in limitations."

"As what?"

"To begin with, we must inform the proper authorities of your discoveries. I'm as skeptical as yourself of the efficacy of this step, but 'twould be inadvisable to ignore it. I am, I may say—" the mellow voice became a shade pompous—"on terms of intimacy with Governor Tompkins, who is also in command of the military district for the administration. Whatever he can do to aid us, we may rely upon. I'll see him, myself. So shall you. And we'll present the matter to him without reservation, eh?"

"I am willing," Fellowes agreed.

"And then, sir?"

"Come with me, if you please."

Joshua took his hat, and motioned toward the door.

"Don't wait for me, Howell," he called to the gray clerk as they passed to the street.

Fellowes was silent until they had crossed the road.

"What other limitations to our bargain had you in mind, sir?" he asked.

"Only such as motives of patriotism should place upon the satisfaction of private enmity. Your pursuit of Captain Collishawe must await the destruction of my brother's conspiracy."

"To pursue them back we'll require a ship."

"Exactly my thought, captain! 'Tis a ship we are after this moment."

They entered South street, and turned toward Gouverneur. Ahead of them was Christian Bergh's shipyard, and Fellowes' face lightened at sight of the graceful fabric that loomed above the scaffolding of the ways.

"Ah, the beauty! The sweetest brig I ever saw!"

"No shipwright like old Christian," Inglepin responded.

"Is she yours?"

"Not yet. Christian built her for speculation. Out of blind pride and confidence in his own skill."

"She's heavier built than the regular clippers," commented Fellowes.

"What's her tonnage?"

"Close to four hundred, I think. Christian built her for strength, no less than speed. And she's well sparred, you see. You could drive her in a gale under tops'ls."

"But she's long for her beam."

"Yes, that's to give her clearance. She's 115 feet over all, and 28 feet beam."

Rounding the bow, Fellowes saw the name Centurion carved in square, block letters just aft of the hawser pipes. He stood so long on his vantage point, feasting his eyes on the swelling lines of the hull, estimating the sail spread of the lofty masts, fancying how she could be pushed in ordinary winds, and driven in dirty weather, that he did not hear Joshua's summons until it had been repeated.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," he exclaimed, and scrambled down to shake hands with leathery, squinty-eyed Christian Bergh.

"You like her, ja?" the old shipwright asked proudly.

"She's the handsomest thing I ever saw, Mr. Bergh. I only wish I could buy her."

"Fifteen t'ousan' tollars I ask for her, mit sails, battery, everyting."

"I haven't fifteen thousand dollars, but if I had—"

"You don't need it," Joshua interrupted abruptly. "She's sold."

He turned to Bergh. "I'll pay the money into Barkers for you, eh, Christian?"

"Dot suits me, Mr. Inglepin. Undt anyting you vant I put in her."

Inglepin took Fellowes by the arm, and walked a few feet aside.

"I'll wager you can run down the True Bounty with that, Captain," exclaimed the merchant.

"I can run down the True Bounty," assented Fellowes, "but she's no use to me unless she can fight the Badger."

"That's your bargain? Fight a King's sloop-of-war with a privateer?"

Discovery of Vitamine Vital to Human Race

The greatest discoveries of benefit to the human race have been the result of accident. Columbus, seeking for a short cut to India, stumbled on America. Perkin, searching for a means of producing artificial quinine, hit upon aniline dyes. When Japan and Russia were in the throes of a death struggle for supremacy, Japan's navy was being decimated by beri-beri. Laboring to find a preventative for the disease, that was making the Japanese panic-stricken, some one remembered that a Dutch scientist discovered in 1897 that pigeons fed on polished rice developed a disease which had all the characteristics of beri-beri. Orders were issued forthwith to stop feeding the sailors with polished rice and to substitute the whole grain; promptly and without delay, the beri-beri disappeared. Scientists, in their efforts to discover the "why," as a famous author expressed it, found the missing link that binds food to health, happiness and achievement—they came upon the vitamine. It was this discovery that enables the human family to keep from starving on a full stomach.

Tree Belfries

Many of the first Christian church bells were fastened in tall trees that stood near the church, writes Satis N. Coleman in his book, "Bells." Even today, in some villages of Russia and other countries, the bell hangs on the branches of a tall tree in the churchyard. In Iceland the bell usually is placed in the "lych gate," a covered entrance to the graveyard. The tree belfry once was common in Scotland and Ireland.

Patriot's Family

Nathan Hale's immediate family consisted of his father, mother, and sister. He was engaged at the time of his death. Farewell letters addressed to his mother, sister and fiancée were destroyed before his eyes. He was the son of Deacon Richard and Elizabeth Story Hale.

"Yes. Fight her, and take her."

"A dangerous business! If 'twas a Frenchman, now, or a bloody Dago. But a Britisher?"

"Aye, the best ship of her size in the King's fleet," Fellowes rejoined, uncompromisingly.

There was comprehension, yes, and respect, in the look Joshua gave the Long Islander.

"Hate him that much, eh? But there'd be no sense in sinking yourself doing it."

"None," Fellowes admitted. "But with the right battery—"

He broke off, and halted the shipwright, who loitered near, gazing lovingly on the thing he had created.

"Mr. Bergh. What guns were you figuring for her?"

"Well, I leave dot for you undt Mr. Inglepin. But if you put in rarronades, beraps we say eighteen-pounders, den you better not hafe more dan sixteen—undt a couple of long twelves for chasers."

Fellowes shook his head.

"A privateer has no proper use for rarronades," he said. "She should never fight at close range. Give us long twelves in the broadside batteries, and we'll mount a twenty-four-pounder Long Tom for'ard on a pivot."

"A twenty-four-pounder!" Mr. Inglepin cried protestingly. "You'd rack her to pieces."

But Christian Bergh dissented vociferously.

"Not dot Centurion! I buildt her for rough work. Ja! We put in some more heafy beams in der fo'c's'le, undt brace der deck."

"Yes, you'd better reinforce those bulwarks, Mr. Bergh. I'd like her to be as strong as a navy vessel of her class."

"She will be," promised the shipwright. "Mit dot brig you can fight a King's ship, if she chase you. Ja!"

They talked then of storage room, and spare sails and cables, and arrangements in the galley for a numerous crew—"you'd best reckon on a hundred and fifty men, captain," advised Inglepin. "Aside from our private ventures, I hope you'll have the luck to pick up prizes. And prizes take hands to bring them in."

And afterward, in the glow of late afternoon, they said good-bye to Bergh, and retraced their steps to the warehouse in Front street. Joshua led the way to the table beside which they had held their earlier conversation.

"I am a business man, sir," he said, pointing to a chair. "And I find it more satisfactory to have definite agreements, of a contractual nature, with persons I deal with. So, if you have no objections, we will reduce our relations to writing. Perhaps you will be so kind as to express your side of the bargain?"

Fellowes peered out the small-paned window next him at the tree-bordered street, dusty and peaceful and very quiet since the workers had gone home. It was difficult to associate this soberly charming scene with all the wild and lurid events that had preceded it, difficult to imagine that only a few miles distant, off Sandy Hook, the Badger plied her errands on the blockade, that perhaps Collishawe had pressed three more men to take the place of Tom, Cuffee and himself.

He was conscious of Joshua Inglepin's china-blue eyes studying his expression with avid intensity.

"My bargain is of the simplest, sir," he answered coolly. "You will purchase the brig Centurion for operation as a privateer. I am to be master of the brig, and I will sail as soon as may be, whenever the True Bounty puts to sea. My major object will be to overhaul the True Bounty, search her for papers or documents of treasonable purport, and if any such are found, seize all persons aboard her. Having done so much, I shall be at liberty to make every attempt to bring the sloop-of-war Badger to action, after which I will return to this port, and render account to you of my operations."

"Clearly phrased," applauded Joshua, grasping a quill pen in his chubby hand. "I will write it, by your leave, sir. A mere matter of form, captain, but advisable, always advisable." He scribbled rapidly at a sheet of foolscap. "Here, sign if you please."

Fellowes wrote his name, with a perverse sense of futility in the gesture.

PAJAMA COSTUMES ARE POPULAR; EVERY HAT IS A PRETTY HAT

Pleated Trouser Type of Pajama Costume.

NOW that the scope of wearableness for the pajama costume reaches beyond the boudoir and the beach, into almost every environment, designers are seizing upon the theme as an outlet for their most intriguing and venture-some ideas.

Just now it is the pleated-trouser type which is making a name for itself in the pajama realm. The cunning outfit in the picture is of printed challis—a material which is very popular for sports and kitchenette wear this season. These pleated flares which begin at the knees are quite skitlike in appearance. Made of challis, linen, gingham and other smart washable weaves, pajama ensembles of the sort pictured are smart for beach wear. They are also rapidly usurping the place of the bungalow-apron type and its near relations.

In creating the multitudinous pajama costumes which have invaded the mode, fashionists make it a point to tune their materials and their styling to environment and event. For instance, one would naturally expect beach pajamas and those worn by enthusiastic sailor lassies, to take on a nautical aspect. Which they do, as in the case of a clever outfit the coat of which goes navy both as to color and motif in that a very important looking insignia is embroidered on one arm while there appears on the shirt of white washable silk an anchor stitched in the dark blue. The trousers completing this ensemble are made of Pretty Summer Hats.

Every hat a pretty hat, a flattering hat, is the decree set for this summer. There's no doubt about it: millinery is returning unto its own—proving itself worthy of its name.

And now that le chapeau is so victoriously "doing its bit" in this campaign for the sweetly feminine which fashion is so successfully waging, let no woman complain of not being able to find a becoming hat. The shops are full of 'em—just such striking and versatile models as are shown in this picture. It happens that each of these hats are either black or black-and-white, for the preferences of all fashionable Paris still trend in this direction.

It will be seen at a glance that in the group illustrated fashion plays no favorite with brimmed or brimless, the beret and fitted cap shapes holding their own along with the hat with a brim. For the little molded-to-the-

For mornings in the garden the picturesque farmerette tunes into the landscape, in that she wears cunningly devised trousers styled of flowered cretonne or print crepe gay with a doral patterning.

When one's cottage or tent is in a wooded spot, gingham is the sensible thing to wear. Pajama costumes made

In Photography

An "ambrotype" is a picture taken on a plate of prepared glass, in which the lights are represented in silver and the shades are produced by a dark background visible through the unsilvered portions of the glass. The ambrotype was invented by James Ambrose Cuttin, and used during the transition period between daguerreotypes and photographs.

Mother of Four Babies

"Although I am only 22 years old, I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. I had to lie down four or five times a day. After three bottles I could feel a great improvement. I still take the Vegetable Compound whenever I need it for it gives me strength to be a good mother to my family."—Mrs. Vern L. Dennings, 510 Johnson Street, Saginaw, Michigan.
